Japanese class to be offered

Everett

High-school and college students in Everett won't have to travel far to learn a different language.

Starting in the fall, Everett Community College and the Everett School District are partnering to offer college-credit world-language classes to students in the district and the public.

The first offering is Japanese 101, which will be held twice a week fall quarter.

All students will earn five college credits, and high-school students will also earn one high-school credit for each class completed with a passing grade.

The course fee is $380 per quarter, plus about $150 for textbooks. The deadline for enrollment is Aug. 15.
