OLYMPIA – Washington State's Health Care Authority announced a Bellevue-based company, Limeade, as the apparent successful bidder to administer SmartHealth, a new wellness program that will reward healthy activities and positive lifestyle changes beginning January 2015. The program is open to state and higher-education employees, employees of participating K-12 school districts and employer groups, and retiree and COBRA subscribers who are not enrolled in Medicare Parts A and B. These members must also have medical coverage through the Public Employees Benefits Board (PEBB) Program. Starting in 2015, the online portal will include a health assessment and individualized health improvement plans that will support eligible subscribers to improve their health, earn the SmartHealth wellness incentive, and learn more about health and wellness topics for themselves and their families.
