Social Studies Mastery-Based Credit

Demonstrating Mastery/Proficiency in Social Studies

The district will manage the assessment process so that students seeking mastery-based credit can demonstrate mastery/proficiency in social studies skills. Mastery-based credit can be used either for awarding credit in place of a traditional course, or for credit recovery purposes.

A student may recover credit by demonstrating mastery in the following ways:

- A student may recover up to 1.0 social studies credit following a failed or incomplete social studies course if the student meets standard on an end-of-course exam for a social studies course (where an end-of-course exam is available); or
- A student may recover up to 1.0 social studies credit if the student meets standard on another approved state alternative that meets the graduation requirement.

General Education Development (GED) Test: Students may obtain (1) social studies credit for achieving a passing score on a GED test (HB 1295) in social studies. A passing score will be determined by the State Board of Education in consultation with the Office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction.

Students may obtain up to 1.0 social studies credit for passing a district-created assessment that is aligned to state learning standards. Students do not need to have attempted and failed a course before being eligible for these options:

- Locally created written or oral test;
- Written report by the student;
- Student-designed portfolio of work;
- Student presentation or oral defense of their learning in the course; or
- A combination of assessment approaches, as defined by the district.

Equivalency course of study: Students may receive credit for learning experiences outside of school that align to state learning standards, in accordance with Board Policy 2409, Granting Equivalency Credit, and WAC 392-410-300.

Successful completion of a course to prepare for the GED test (HB 1295 Section 4): Students may receive credits for successfully completing a course or courses in preparation for taking a GED test.

Successful completion of next higher-level course: Credit may be awarded for a course when the student successfully completes the next higher-level course in a sequence that includes a natural progression of the state learning standards from the previous course. State or locally determined learning standards will be used as the guide when making decisions regarding what courses should qualify.

Mastery-based credit is available in the following social studies courses if the student achieves a C or higher grade in the next-higher level course:

- World History
- US History
- Civics
- Washington State History

The district collects and annually reviews disaggregated data to see which subgroups of students are receiving mastery-based credit. If disproportionality is found, the district takes appropriate actions to ensure equitable access to these crediting opportunities.
