High School & Beyond events connect students to future next steps

Students see possibilities and opportunities to inspire their academic and career goals

Everett Public Schools, with funding from the Everett Public Schools Foundation (EPSF), bring three High School & Beyond opportunities to students and their families to explore options to aid in making informed decisions about future steps after graduation.

Cascade High School hosted the first event, October 4, with those in attendance connecting with more than 60 colleges, universities, technology and trade schools, trade apprenticeships, military and local businesses. Washington-specific schools were highlighted, including local community colleges.

"I am grateful for the support from the EPSF to allow this opportunity for students to interact with professionals in different fields to give them a more realistic view of what to expect in their chosen careers," said Dave Peters, director of student support services. "It is also an opportune time to explore academic steps to help meet their career goals."

There are two more opportunities to attend this impactful event:

- October 11 at Jackson High School in the gym and main building from 5:30 to 7 p.m.
- October 24 at Everett High School in the gym from 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. (families must check-in at the lower floor of the gym, at the east entrance to receive a visitors' badge).
