To Whom It May Concern,

Providence Regional Medical Center Everett is excited to offer a summer volunteer opportunity for high school students in the community.

The 2013 Summer High School Volunteer Program will take place from June 24th – August 30th and will require 60 hours of service within our hospital setting. This commitment will also include one week of service at Camp Prov, a day camp in Everett for children who have special needs.

We strive to give each student a valuable learning experience with the hope that they develop important traits, such as responsibility, reliability and success through their commitment to the program. We hope that after completion of the required volunteer hours, they will feel a sense of accomplishment and pride that they have accomplished a goal and enriched the lives of our patients, visitors and staff.

Interested sophomores, juniors and seniors between the ages of 16-18 should submit their name and contact information to Volunteer Services at 425-261-4580 during the month of January, 2013. The deadline to sign-up is January 31st, 2013. Applications and instructions will then be sent to interested students with a strict deadline for completion and submission. We also welcome graduating seniors to call us about volunteering in our traditional volunteer program during the school year.

Please feel free to contact Nick Rebo, Volunteer Supervisor at 425-261-4584 with any questions you may have about the summer program.

Sincerely,
