In your group, think about the room you've been assigned (kitchen, bathroom, bedroom, laundry room, etc.). Sit as a group together on the floor. Pretend you are 12 months old. Imagine you are in the room you have been assigned. Name as many things as you can that would look interesting enough to touch and explore in the room. Have one group member write down each item on this sheet. When you are done with the list, try to think of safety tips parents might use to keep their children from getting into trouble in that room of the house. When all the groups are finished, share your results with the whole class.
