

Our students will lead and shape the future

News release

Feb. 16, 2016

North Middle School holds third annual Evening of the Arts

FREE community event features music, drama and art, OH MY! March 23 from 6 - 8 p.m.

Last year more than 350 artists and community art fans attended the school's second annual tribute to the arts and artists at North Middle School and the National Youth Art Month.

This year's show features the school's National Scholastic Arts and Writing award winners and entries in the 2015 PTA Reflections contest.

Organizer and art teacher Cynthia Gaub notes the gala's visitors will enjoy live musical and dramatic performances, plus a gallery display of traditional and technology inspired visual arts. "The art will be on display in the cafeteria, and guests will enjoy refreshments served by our Honor Society and AVID students. All who attend can vote for their favorite artwork."

*Youth Art Month "Flag" Contest Winning Art
Painted Arts by Joanna Marin, grade 6, North
Middle School*

Gaub urges art enthusiasts to arrive at 6 to preview the displays and take a seat for performances beginning at 6:30. "The talented and dedicated musicians of the Jazz Band and Jazz Choir have an infectious passion for jazz." North's after-school drama club will demonstrate their acting skills with a performance of In Search of a Life.

Following the performances, there is more time to check out the art, vote for the "People's Choice" award, enjoy refreshments and visit with the young artists and performers.

For more information:

Cynthia Gaub, North Middle School art teacher, 425-385-4800

Mary Waggoner, Director of Communications, 425-385-4040

---end---