

in the inner city
By Lucille Clifton

in the inner city
or
like we call it
home
we think a lot about uptown and the silent nights
and the houses straight as dead men
and the pastel lights
and we hang on to our no place happy to be alive
and in the inner city
or like we call it
home