Legacy II

Leroy V. Quintana

Grandfather never went to school spoke only a few words of English a quiet man; when he talked talked about simple things planting corn or about the weather sometimes about herding sheep as a child

One day pointed to the four directions taught me their names

El Norte

Poniente

Oriente

El Sur

He spoke their names as if they were one of only a handful of things a man needed to know

Now I look back only two generations removed realize I am nothing but a poor fool who went to college trying to find my way back to the center of the world where Grandfather stood that day
