

Session Make-Up work for Pro-Cert 11-9-06

In order to make-up this work, I'm going to ask you to complete the following:

1. Read the article You Can Teach for Meaning by Jay McTighe, Elliott Seif and Grant Wiggins. This can be found at the ASCD website in the archive - Educational Leadership, September 2004, Volume 62, Number 1. I have e-mailed the article to you.
2. Write a short paper reflecting upon the above article.
3. Complete the homework from our previous session - the Personal Capacity Worksheet.
3. Schedule a time with me to review the article and also a quick review of PD Point. The best time for me would be December 14 between 3:00 and 4:00 at the Longfellow Large Annex. This would be before our next Pro Cert meeting. Please let me know if that works for you.

Also, there is some homework to prepare for the next session. You can find all the handouts and presentation that you miss at our website: <http://www.everett.k12.wa.us/profdev/>. On the right hand side, there is a menu with dates and a link for course materials.
